GREETINGS FROM THE CEO

Greetings,

I hope you and your loved ones are staying healthy and safe. During these uncertain times due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Guide Dogs for the Blind (GDB) is continuing to do what we do best: care for our dogs and puppies, and assist our clients across the U.S. and Canada. While we've had to adjust how we provide critical services, with the incredible support of our GDB community, we are moving forward.

I'm very proud of our amazing staff who are continuing to provide support services to our more than 2,100 guide dog teams and 2,000 puppy raisers via video chat, email, and phone, in addition to supporting our many foster volunteers, breeder custodians, and campus volunteers. As the COVID-19 pandemic evolves, we are continuing to reassess the ways we engage our broader GDB community of puppy raisers, donors, volunteers, and clients.

One thing we know for certain: our guide dogs do so much more than help our clients get from point A to point B. Maia Scott, who is featured in this newsletter, credits her guide dog Gleam for providing her with much needed companionship and emotional comfort in these challenging times.

CHRISTINE

AND THEIA

The GDB community has been tested through hardships and natural disasters before, and through every situation, we have emerged stronger than ever. With your continued encouragement and support, we will do so again. For the latest updates and ways you can help, please stay connected with us through social media and our website, guidedogs.com. Thank you for all that you do for GDB—today and every day.

With gratitude,

“Gleam, Forward!”

Moving Forward During the COVID-19 Pandemic with GDB Alumna Maia Scott

Like the rest of us, Maia Scott has spent several weeks sheltering in place during the coronavirus outbreak. Gleam, her Golden Retriever guide dog, has been her source of emotional comfort.

“I tend to worry. Gleam provides routine to my day and reminds me to be in the moment. She makes me feel vital again,” says Maia.

Gleam is Maia’s fourth guide dog. Maia describes the two-week training program as emotional, vibrant, and transformative. “Gleam is such a fiercely loyal dog and throws her heart into all that she does for her person. I was worried that she was so bonded to her trainer that she couldn’t be there for me, so I kept my emotional distance.” Maia credits her instructor, Cathie Laber, for helping her stay positive and trust the partnership that was developing.

BONDING THROUGH DANCE

Knowing she needed to let go of her apprehension, Maia took Gleam to her dorm room and put on Matisyahu's song Live like a Warrior. Maia began to dance, letting her body and expectations flow free. When she worked her way to the ground, Gleam plowed into her headfirst and did a somersault into her lap. Gleam continued, wagging, and prancing.

"We danced together with Gleam offering downward dog play bows and prancing circles, and I improvised with inspiration from her authentic movements," recalls Maia. Afterwards, Gleam lay against Maia with her paw atop her foot. "Dancing freely with her broke down that last barrier between us. In that dance, Gleam finally got to see all of me, unabashed silliness, joy, and creative spontaneity, not just the overly amped up, do-right person I'd been on the other end of the harness."

EDUCATOR, HUMANITARIAN, AND AUTHOR

A self-described lifelong learner, Maia is an accomplished theatre, art, and dance instructor, massage therapist, labyrinth meditation facilitator, and writer. She recently completed Finger Walks, a guidebook in print and Braille along with 16 tactile, high-contrast finger labyrinths, published by the American Printing House for the Blind.

"That's my biggest cause for a happy dance right now," says Maia, who wrote the book after realizing there is nominal material about labyrinths accessible to the blind community. "I always tell people that while my sight may be impaired, my vision is clear," explains Maia, who has focused much of her adult life using her disability to help others with differences realize their abilities.

Maia was recently honored in an exhibit called Changemakers: Bay Area Disability Pride at the San Francisco Public Library. The exhibit featured 50 portraits of local people with disabilities accompanied by audio and Braille descriptions. Maia was recognized for being "an extraordinary woman of compassion who has made it her life work to ensure all people are treated with dignity."

STAYING STRONG

Maia says she's extremely grateful for GDB's training program and ongoing support services. "GDB's training is very person-centered and sets clients

"Maia and Gleam are perfect for each other. They share the same spirit, and she loves all the fun and silly quirks that Gleam has. Seeing the two of them together, watching the bond they have—that's what puppy raising is all about."

—Anna Wilke,
Gleam's puppy raiser

up for success so that we can go home safely and confidently." That confidence has helped her find a silver lining during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"Every time I pick up the harness handle with Gleam at my side and utter 'Gleam, forward,' I'm appropriating the guide dog handler's command as a mantra for me and a prayer that we will all navigate our way through this troubling time. May we all Gleam Forward!"

Finding our new normal with COVID-19

GDB wants to thank our community for pitching in and allowing us to continue our life-changing mission during these uncertain times. When we asked for your help, you rose to the challenge. As our organization adjusted to how we work, the strength of our staff and volunteers continued to shine, proving that even when we're apart, teamwork and our furry friends are key to our success!

MOVING FORWARD DURING COVID-19

GDB has provided critical support services to our clients throughout the pandemic while ensuring the safety of our staff, volunteers, puppies and dogs. This has meant lots of video chats and moving 150 adult dogs off our campuses to nurturing home environments until the shelter-in-place mandates are lifted and staff can return to campus. These necessary adjustments have resulted in increased costs related to:

- Veterinary care for dogs and puppies off campus
- Providing dog food for program dogs whose caregivers and clients are experiencing financial hardship
- Enrichment supplies and exercise pens for puppies in training across 10 states
- Zoom video service for staff and puppy raiser meetings and client consultations

When our training operations fully resume, we expect higher demand for in-home client training as some clients may not be able to travel to our campuses. GDB is committed to meeting our clients' needs even if it means incurring higher travel costs. Why? Because we believe that every eligible person who is blind or visually impaired should have the opportunity to partner with a highly trained guide dog to provide them with enhanced independence, confidence, mobility, companionship, and greater inclusion.
